

NEW ORLEANS MARKET.

New Orleans, July 15, 1896.

Cotton.—The market opened this morning under a heavy overcast, with a light breeze from the west and west-south-west, and a temperature of 84 degrees, with a humidity of 80 per cent. The market was quiet, with a few transactions in the afternoon, but no important trading at the above-named rate. The market was quiet, with a few transactions in the afternoon, but no important trading at the above-named rate.

Meat.—The market was quiet, with a few transactions in the afternoon, but no important trading at the above-named rate.

Butter.—The market was quiet, with a few transactions in the afternoon, but no important trading at the above-named rate.

Eggs.—The market was quiet, with a few transactions in the afternoon, but no important trading at the above-named rate.

Other.—The market was quiet, with a few transactions in the afternoon, but no important trading at the above-named rate.

There seems to be no other way of doing it than by the old-fashioned method of putting up the fish in barrels or kegs, and salting them down. This is done in some parts of Massachusetts, but I have never seen it done elsewhere.

Freshets. There is considerable action exhibited by freshets in the waters of the Connecticut River. The water rises very suddenly, and runs very fast, and carries down much drift-wood, and sometimes even trees. It is said that the freshets are caused by the melting of the snow in the mountains of New York, and run in the direction of the river.
